The University Church's annual Black History celebration takes place next Sabbath, February 3. Dr. Hyveth Williams from the Adventist Theological Seminary at Andrews University will preach two different sermons for First and Second service (9:30 and 11:45am). In addition to the traditional Mass Choir at Second Service, the 60-voice Portland Adventist Academy Choir will lead us in worship, with guest musicians Wayne Bucknor and Andrew Young from Oakwood University. "Total Praise: A Festival of Choirs" concert is planned for Sabbath afternoon at 4pm in the Sanctuary. Please join us!

BULLETIN

JANUARY 27, 2018

The NBA's Boston Celtics' head basketball coach Brad Stevens asks, "How good can we expect to be if our best player is not our best teammate?" This weekend we celebrate the rich and rewarding experience of teamwork, teammates, and team through WWU's Friendship Tournament. Camaraderie on the basketball court is a gift, yet it is not the deepest and most enduring commitment we cherish, for this alone belongs to the fellowship of Jesus Christ.

Today, in worship, we celebrate Jesus, our best player, teammate, coach, Creator, Lord, and Savior. Welcome to our many guests from 12 schools around the country. It is my prayer that we all might experience Him through Christian fellowship this weekend.

—Alex Bryan, senior pastor

GIVE

This past week, Walla Walla University took part in its yearly tradition, Student Week of Worship. Each morning in the University Church Sanctuary, a community of more than 1,500 students, faculty, and staff, gathered to hear the stories and experiences of their peers. Two speakers per day gave their answers to the question, "Now What?"

Meghin Howard, WWU student and Monday's Week of Worship speaker

Your gifts to the University Church budget make events like Week of Worship possible. Thank you for supporting our mission of teaching people—everywhere, of every age, gender, race, and culture—to follow Jesus.

Give on our website (wwuchurch.com), or by placing your donation in a tithe envelope and marking it "Local Church Budget," or by placing it in the offering bags. Thank you!

MUSIC NOTE

Please join us in worship this morning as we are blessed with the musical offerings of two of Walla Walla University's ensembles: the Brass Choir, directed by Brandon Beck, and University Singers.

The music in our service today represents one big celebration of God's power. The prelude, based on Hymn No.167, exclaims "Alleluia! Sing to Jesus!" Immediately, the congregation responds in song with Hymn No.229, claiming the power of His name. University Singers then demonstrate in Powell's upbeat gospel piece how we should be exclaiming endless praises to God for His wonderful and marvelous nature. The celebration continues with Jackson's setting of the African greeting song "Hlohonolofatsa", or "Bless everything in the name of the Father," as two ladies call out to each other across the choir and inspire the rest to sing along. Peter Flores then reminds us of the beautiful truth that God claims His own name: Alpha and Omega, beginning and end. He is powerful and present in our lives.

After the sermon, please continue to meditate on the power of our Lord through the Brass Choir's offertory and postlude. May we all, in the presence of such majesty, be inspired to take action, as the words of our closing hymn (No.615) command.

-Lindsay Armstrong
